LDS | BUSINESS COLLEGE

In 1886, William B. Dougall gathered several local leaders from Salt Lake City together to make an important proposal—that the youth of Salt Lake City should have a school of their own. And so, what we know today as LDS Business College was born.

It was a meeting that almost didn't take place.

The gathering was scheduled to occur in a bookstore owned by James Dwyer, but the night before the meeting a fire broke out in the building. The next morning, water that had been used to put out the fire was still dripping from the destroyed roof. That could have been the end of Dougall's dream, but his group of determined, resourceful pioneers met anyway, sitting on boxes and crates in the charred, damp remains of the bookstore.

The symbolism of that first meeting cannot be ignored. Surrounded by the ashes of books, the gathered leaders made plans for a place of learning. The phoenix that rose from those ashes was the Salt Lake Stake Academy, now known as LDS Business College.

Since its founding, LDS Business College has moved eight times, and instruction has been provided in a total of 16 buildings. It stood on the location of the current Church Office Building for the longest span of time, from 1901 to 1961.

From 1962 to 2006, LDS Business College occupied the Wall Mansion in downtown Salt Lake City before moving to its current location at the Triad Center, just west of Temple Square.

LDSBC has had five names since its inception, and has been called LDS Business College since 1931. Previously, the name had been LDS College, but in the early years of the Great Depression, when the Church was no longer able to support the College, the only department that remained was the Business Department. Thus, the addition of "Business" to the name.

The school's purpose is to provide a spiritually grounded, career-based education. LDSBC provides programs in business, accounting, health professions, information technology, software development, interior design, paralegal studies, digital marketing and applied technology.

Through these in-demand professional certificates and associate degrees, students become job-ready in one to two years and are prepared for entry-level employment upon graduation.

Each year, over 3,000 students come to the College from 50 U.S. states and more than 80 countries. Nearly 53 percent of the students are returned missionaries, and international students comprise approximately 34 percent of the student body.

Since it opened its door, nearly 100,000 students have attended LDS Business College.

The College has held Commencement exercises on Temple Square in Salt Lake City almost since its first graduating class.

For several reasons, these commencement exercises are historic in the life of this institution. It is a day with a “first”, and a day with a “last”. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Church and the government have directed us to limit the size of gatherings. As a result, this will be the first time we have held a commencement virtually, with no audience and no graduates in attendance.

It is our last commencement as LDS Business College. As we begin an exciting new era in our history, LDS Business College will become Ensign College on September 1st, 2020. Our 134th Commencement in April 2021 will be our first as Ensign College.

You may be wondering why LDS Business College will be renamed Ensign College.

On July 26, 1847, two days after arriving in the Salt Lake Valley, Brigham Young and several other men hiked to the top of a mountain he had seen in vision prior to beginning the trek west. From their vantage point, one thousand feet above the valley floor, Brigham Young described his vision and the men “began to lay plans for the future city.”

That spot, Ensign Peak, rises just north of where the College is located. It was given that name because it was a symbol of the “spirit of international outreach and the ancient promise that here one could learn the ways of God.”

Throughout its 134-year history, LDS Business College, now located in the shadow of Ensign Peak, has provided such an environment.

Commencement Speaker – Sister Jean B. Bingham

Sister Jean Barrus Bingham is the 17th general president of the Relief Society.

At the time of her call in April 2017, she was serving as first counselor in the Primary general presidency. Sister Bingham met her husband, Bruce, while they were both students at Brigham Young University. While her children were in their later years, Sister Bingham returned to college to complete a bachelor's and master's degree in addition to two associate degrees.

She has taught English as a second language to elementary students, in addition to immigrants and others for nonprofit organizations. She has also worked as a nurse's aide.

In addition to volunteer work at her children's schools, Sister Bingham has served as an early-morning Seminary teacher, as a temple ordinance worker, and in various leadership roles in the Primary, Young Women and Relief Society. These have prepared her well for the significant responsibility that is hers as Relief Society General President, leading an organization with a global membership in the many millions.

The Bingham's are the parents of two daughters. She and her husband have also been foster parents to teens and children, many of whom have become part of their family.

Jesus Callirgos

LDS Business College is an institution of higher education founded and sponsored by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The school's mission is to develop capable and trusted disciples of Jesus Christ.

As an institution, we seek and follow the counsel and guidance of inspired leaders in harmony with The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, its purposes, and in fulfilling our stated mission.

Core Themes

Strengthening faith in Jesus Christ and His restored gospel, and following His example, are at the center of all we do.

A unique learning and teaching framework prepares confident and skillful learners with relevant, in-demand and market-ready skills.

Learning and teaching take place in a spiritually nourishing and uplifting environment.

As each learner discovers their potential, they are enabled with power to act and grow; to become valuable employees and lifelong learners; and to serve as leaders in their homes, the Church and their communities.
