CHURCH OFFICE BUILDING SEVENTH FLOOR REDESIGN

*The only way to do great work is to love what you do.
- Steve Jobs*

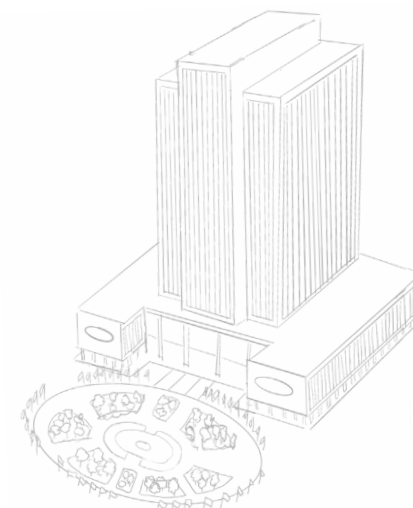

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints commissioned a remodel of the Seventh Floor of the Church Office Building in Salt Lake City. Originally begun in 1962 and dedicated in 1975, the building remains a landmark of purpose and legacy.

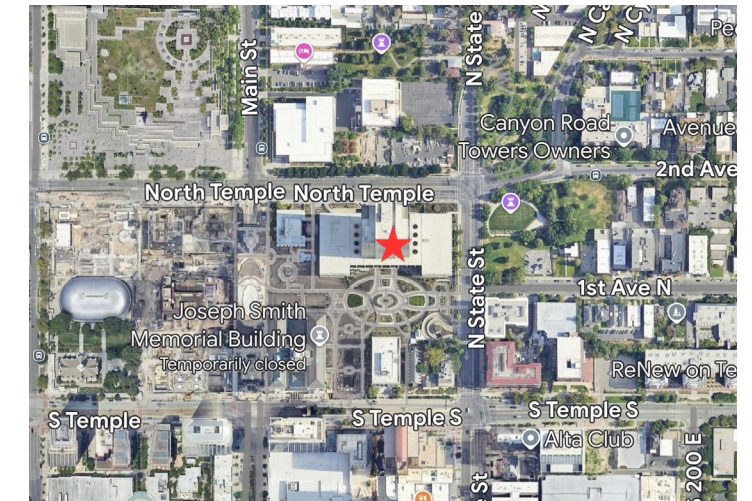

The 10,000-square-foot renovation reconfigures the floor to support one of the Church's design departments, including a Reception area, five Directors' Offices, a Conference Room, and dedicated zones for Project Management, IT, the Design Team, and Field Operations.

The design balances focused work with collaboration and connection, offering hybrid workstations, gathering areas, and spaces to pause and recharge. Abundant natural light and sweeping views are thoughtfully integrated throughout, ensuring all can enjoy the surrounding beauty.

SITE MAP

CLIENT

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

CONCEPT

Inspired by the breathtaking beauty and majesty of the Wasatch Mountains, and the enduring strength of the pioneers who once settled this valley, this design reflects a harmonious balance of resilience, comfort, and functionality. Flooded with natural light, the space offers sweeping views in three directions—south, east, and west—which should be enhanced for everyone's enjoyment in the space.

MATERIALS

Using colors from the surrounding Mountains and Valley, creates a grounded space with expansive views.

DESIGN STATEMENT

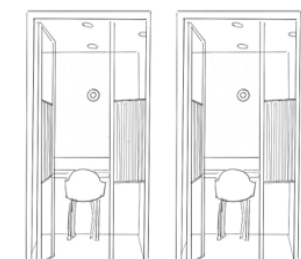

The intent of this design was to create a modern, flexible, and collaborative space that supports in-office “heads down work” WWAs as well as remote work.

The layout was configured to take advantage of the natural light. Private offices, pods and collaborative spaces were used to ensure that productivity, innovation and well-being can be achieved, as well as providing the flexibility of accommodating those working in-office.

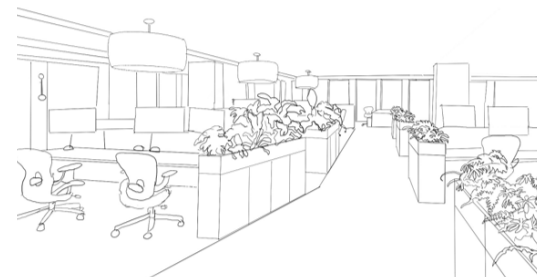

- *More space for collaboration, and gathering.
- *Configure layout to ensure views and natural light.

JACKSON'S ACCESSIBLE HOME

EXTERIOR SKETCH

Accessible design is good design.
- Steve Ballmer

DESIGN STATEMENT:

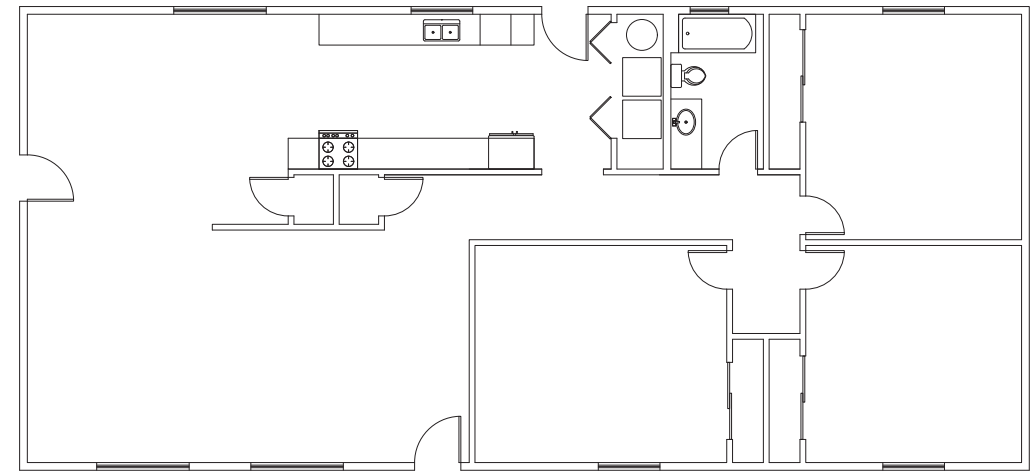

This 1,875-square-foot home renovation for the Jackson family focuses on creating a warm, accessible and enduring space that balances beauty and functionality.

With Mrs. Jackson's recent diagnosis of Multiple Sclerosis, the design prioritizes full wheelchair accessibility, featuring wide hallways, zero threshold entrances, roll under countertops, and an ADA compliant bathroom.

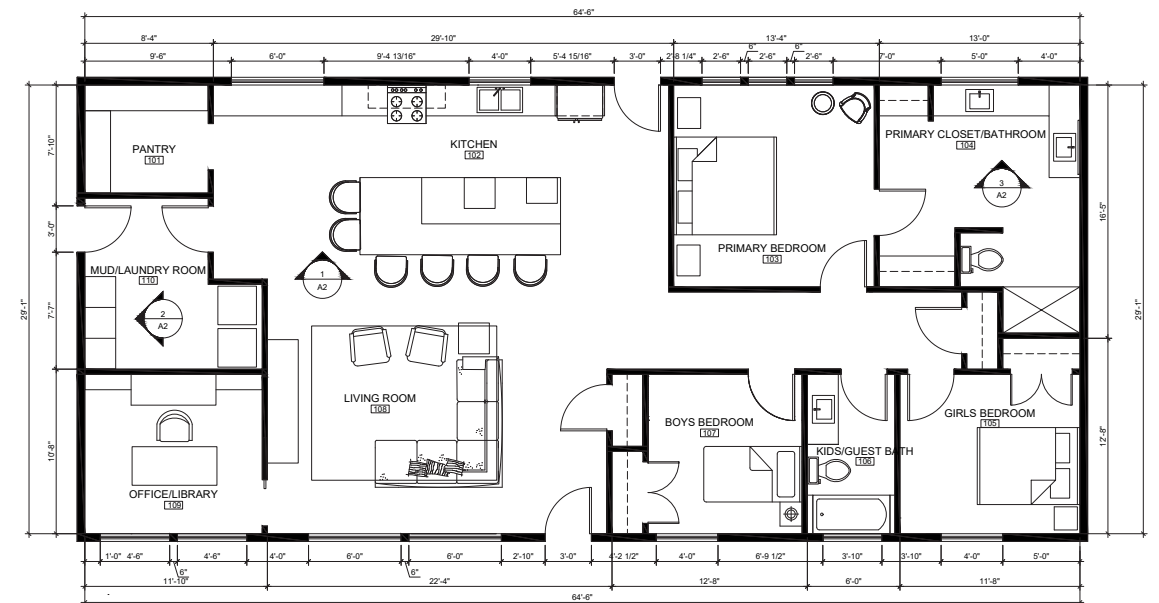

Based on the family's love for nature and simplicity, the home will be infused with organic materials, natural wood, stone, and soft non-toxic textiles to create a calming grounded atmosphere.

The layout includes a spacious, light-filled office, a functional mud/laundry room, and a generous walk-in pantry to support the family's everyday needs.

The renovation thoughtfully balances accessibility and aesthetics, ensuring the Jacksons feel both at home and at ease, now and into the future.

CRAWFORD'S CONDO

EXTERIOR SKETCH

*My job is not to design buildings,
it is to understand what a person's or family's dream of home is and then to make it come true.
-Gil Schaffer 111*

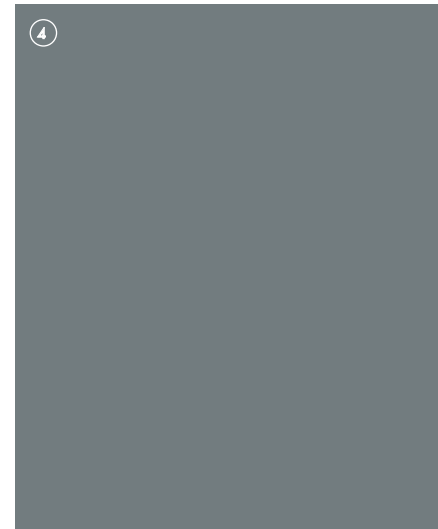

DESIGN STATEMENT:

Located just steps from the ocean, this one bed, one bath condo is a dream retreat for the Crawford's. They requested a simple, comfortable design, using quality materials that would stand the test of time.

Natural materials such as textured stone, warm woods and an abundance of spun breathable linens were selected to evoke a sense of calm and understated luxury. The custom cabinetry drenched in Farrow & Ball Railings acts as a neutral that contrasts with the clean white tile backsplash.

This project balances minimalistic design with a sense of place - creating an environment that feels grounded, airy and connected to the surroundings. The result is a modern sophisticated space that evokes a true escape from an otherwise busy lifestyle.

ENERGY AND WATER EFFICIENCY

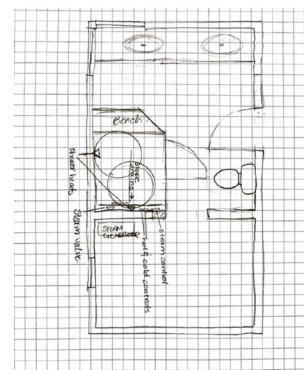

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

This 1990s Primary bathroom has been reimagined to promote wellness and relaxation, with a large walk-in steam shower featuring natural stone tiles. Steam showers use 20 gallons of water for a 30-minute shower, whereas a regular shower uses 20 gallons in one minute. Intelligent privacy glass windows have been installed, which transition to frosted with the touch of a button. A water-efficient wall-hung lavatory contributes to the minimal aesthetic.

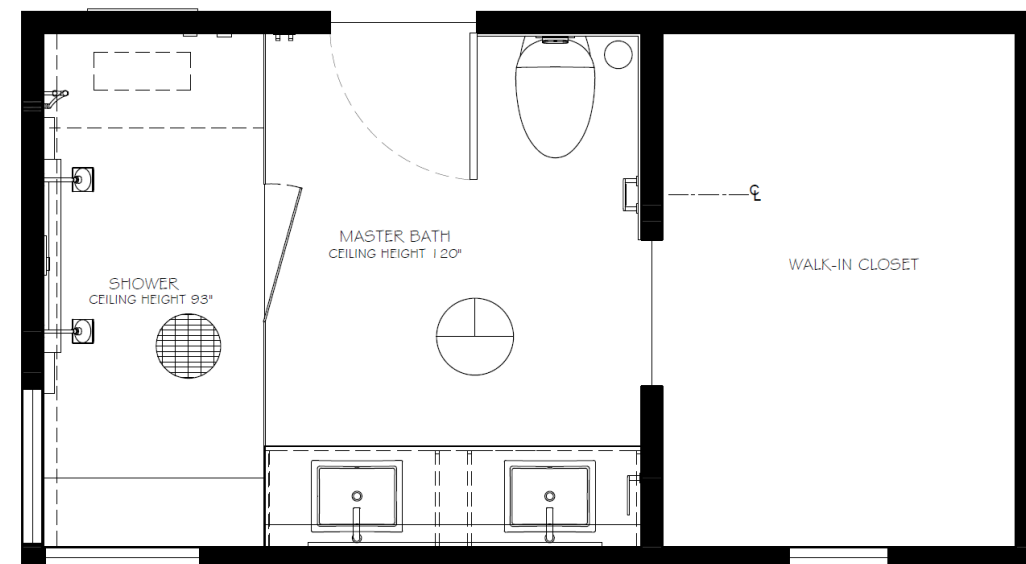

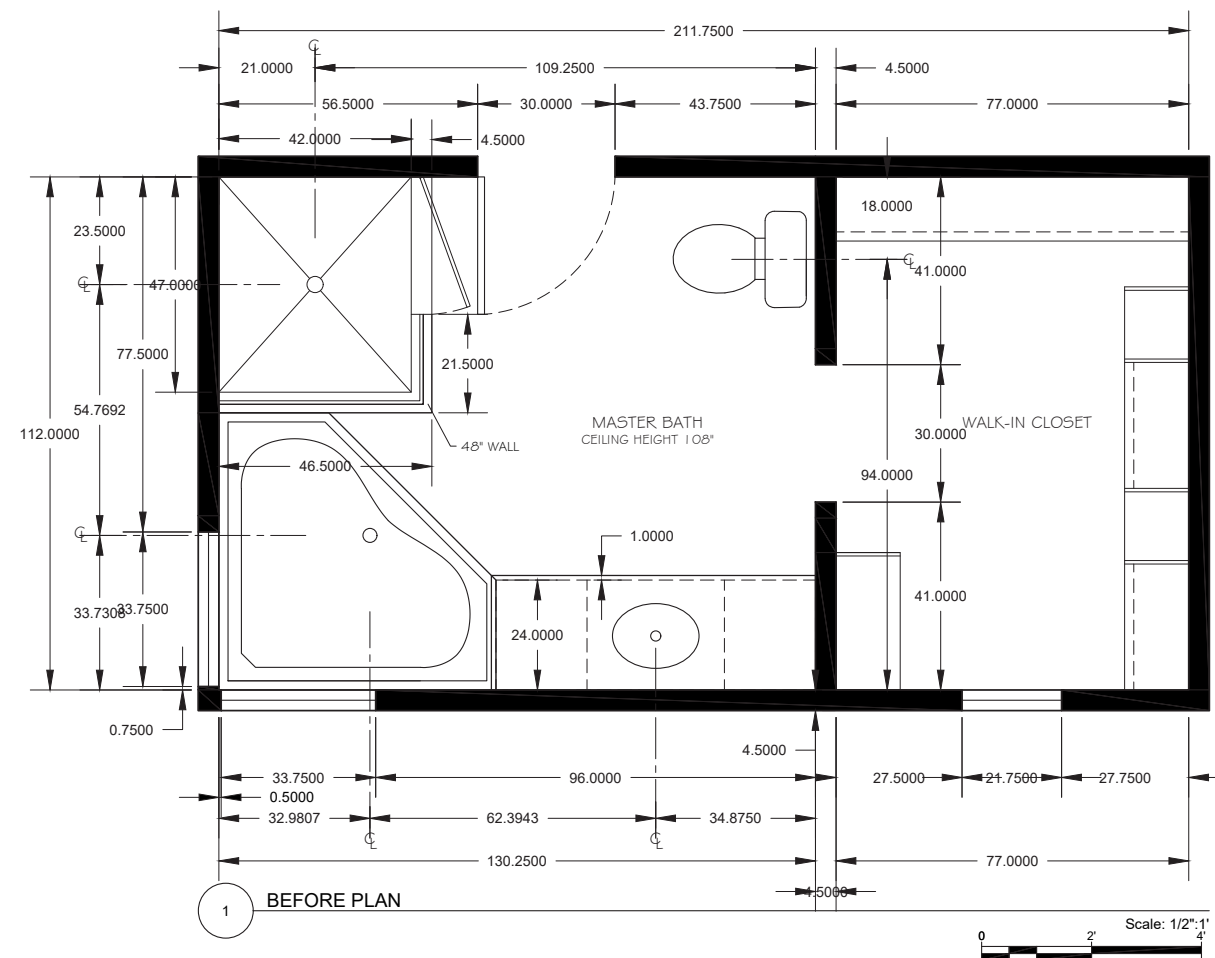

The custom cabinetry was crafted from FSC-certified black walnut. Underfloor radiant heating and ambient LED lighting enhance the spa experience. The natural, creamy finishes of stone flooring and plaster evoke the Tuscan tradition, while the curated lighting and clean lines elevate the design, bringing it into the present day and embracing modern innovations, comfort, luxury, and technology.

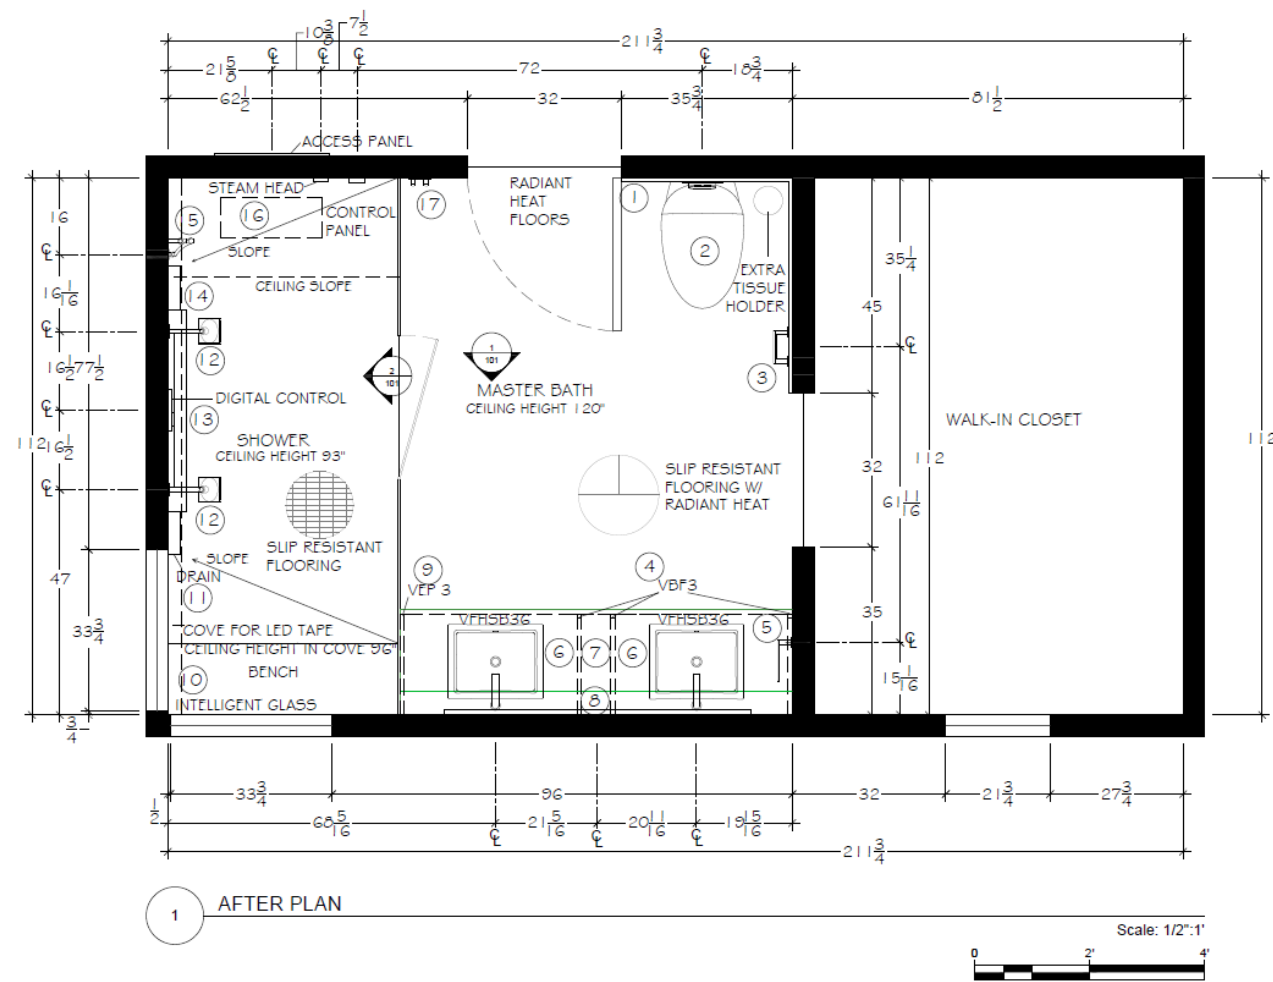

Preferred sketch that provides a large steam shower.

Sketch that allows for a more spacious vanity.
